When calculating charges for self-employed people, where it is difficult to state income, the following charge calculation shall be used:

- Income is assessed on the basis of the latest tax return/previous year's tax assessment.
- For newly started businesses, the income stated in the income report for two years, from the month the company started. Real income is reported in arrears by presenting the tax return for the income year and approved assessment (final tax) in the following year. The charge may be adjusted retroactively, increased or decreased, after considering the real gross income for the period.
